Established in 1890, Maas International was originally a producer of cigars and global wholesaler of tobacco. Through time the business evolved and consolidated and in the 1960's with the development of retail through vending, Maas International began to focus its attention to vending.

Today, Maas International is one of the largest vending organisations across Europe, and having founded the (International Vending Association) IVA in 2002, we now service 55,000 throughout Europe. 5,500 of these machines are in the UK & Ireland. The Maas organisation is split into two divisions, the operational division, Maas International Europe B.V, and the production division, Spengler GmbH. The operational division focuses on the out-of-home market with its full vending service concept. The production division focuses 100% on developing and producing premium vending machines that lead the way in design, quality and innovation. Maas International is still a family owned business today and owned entirely by Ad Maas whose primary focus is quality, innovation and design with a real focus on sustainability and the environment. As a consequence our hot drinks machines are designed to deliver the best quality hot drinks and from the most attractive and environmentally friendly machines on the market.
